

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

Just Being Happy

WHEN the makers of the constitution of the United States declared that "Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness" were inalienable rights they were voicing sentiments as old as humanity itself. Last but not least of these is "the pursuit of Happiness." To have life and liberty without happiness is to live an incomplete and unsatisfied life. Not that we ever attain complete happiness in this world—the pleasure comes in the pursuit, not in the attainment! R. L. S. has truthfully said that "To travel hopefully is a better thing than to arrive."

One reason why we never overtake Happiness is because it is always fleeing from us. Only when we attain our ideal do we attain complete happiness, and as our ideals constantly recede, so Happiness in its complete fulfillment forever escapes us. But the pursuit of Happiness is the supreme joy in life and the sign that our faith is still strong and our hearts still young. Not dissatisfied but forever unsatisfied is the deathless cry of all human hearts.

One great inspiration to happy living is happy thinking, and this "Little Bundle of Happy Thoughts" is bound up in the hope that it may serve as a companion to those who love life and still pursue the blue bird of Happiness.

JUST BEING HAPPY

JUST being happy is a fine thing to do;
Looking on the bright side rather than the blue;
Sad or sunny musing
Is largely in the choosing,
And just being happy is brave work and true.

Just being happy helps other souls along;
Their burdens may be heavy and they not strong;
And your own sky will lighten,
If other skies you brighten
By just being happy with a heart full of song.

—Ripley D. Saunders

WHAT does the lark in the meadow sing?
"Be glad;"
What is the robin caroling?
"Be glad;"
What are the words that the breezes bring
Over the hills, and what is the thing
That is sung by the rushes beside the spring?
Listen—the song of the breeze and birds
Is a song of joy that has two brave words:
"Be glad."

—S. E. Kiser

TALK HAPPINESS

TALK happiness. The world is sad enough
Without your woe. No path is wholly rough.
Look for the places that are smooth and clear,
And speak of them to rest the weary ear
Of earth; so hurt by one continuous strain
Of mortal discontent and grief and pain.

Talk faith. The world is better off without
Your uttered ignorance and morbid doubt—
If you have faith in God, or man, or self,
Say so; if not, push back upon the shelf
Of silence all your thoughts till faith shall come;
No one will grieve because your lips are dumb.

Talk health. The dreary, never-ending tale
Of mortal maladies is worn and stale
You cannot charm, or interest, or please
By harping on that minor chord, disease.
Say you are well, or all is well with you,
And God shall hear your words, and make them true.

—Ella Wheeler Wilcox

BE happy; let who will be sad,
There are so many pleasant things,
So many things to make us glad,—
The flower that buds, the bird that sings;
And sweeter still than all of these
Are friendship and old memories.

FATE used me meanly and I looked at her and laughed,
That none might know how bitter was the cup I quaffed;
Along came Joy and paused beside me where I sat,
Saying, "I came to see what you were laughing at!"

WHAT do we live for if it is not to make life less difficult for others? —George Eliot

BE cheerful. Give this lonesome world a smile.
We stay at longest but a little while.
Hasten we must, or we shall lose the chance
To give the gentle word, the kindly glance.
Be sweet and tender—that is doing good;
'Tis doing what no other kind deed could.

THE unpardonable sin in a mother is gloom. If you would influence your children for good, let your presence radiate smiles. Let your children hear you laugh often; but laugh with them, never at them.

WOULD'ST contentment thou keep within thy heart?
Then care not what thou hast, but what thou art.
And keep thee true to what is best in thee,
And true to her thou lovest; pray that she
May love thee, too. Then laugh at all the rest;
No other God need'st thou; thou hast the best.

These are the things that mar or bless
The sum of human happiness.

IF I am happy in spite of my deprivations, if my happiness is so deep that it is a faith, so thoughtful that it becomes a philosophy of life,—my testimony to the creed of optimism is worth hearing. My optimism rests on a glad belief in the preponderance of good and a willing effort always to co-operate with the good, that it may prevail. I try to increase the power God has given me to see the best in everything and every one, and make that best a part of my life.

JUST BEING HAPPY

THE HAPPINESS OF HELPFULNESS

STEVENSON speaks of "the great task of happiness." But happiness is not a task. It is not even an occupation. It is a quality of life. Happiness depends on helpfulness. That's the reason joy is social. Helpfulness keeps happiness because it adds to the area of affection. People are not happy when they seek after happiness. They become steeped in happiness when they undertake to promote the joy of others. —Walter Williams

HAPPINESS depends on helpfulness as health depends on air and food. They who are intent on ministration, looking for opportunities to be of service to their neighbors, find the dullest places interesting. The unselfish person lives in an environment of happiness, surrounded by those whom he has helped to be happy, and who in return are endeavoring to bring happiness to him. —George Hodges

LET any clever woman simply take it to heart to make everybody about her as happy as she can, and the result will always be wonderful.

HAVE you not sometimes seen happiness? Yes, the happiness of others. —Arsene Houssaye

OBEYING THE HEAVENLY VISION

WE can't choose happiness. We can only choose whether we will indulge ourselves in the present moment or whether we will renounce that for the sake of obeying the divine voice within us—for the sake of being true to all the motives that sanctify our lives. I know this belief is hard but I have felt that if I let it go forever, I should have no light through the darkness of this life.

—George Eliot

JUST BEING HAPPY

OUR happiness to-day is to so enormous an extent in our own hands. A man is happy when he thinks he is. And why should I not this morning think so? Why should I be gloomy when I can be glad? Here inside me is a force that can drive away the clouds. Our will power, which can call up good thoughts and disperse bad ones; which can fall back on gracious memories as a refuge from present evils; which, in a word, can make its own weather—our will power, if we will only use it, is our philosopher's stone, that turns all things into gold. The more we give it to do, the better it works.

—J. Brierley

THERE is a beautiful and an ugly way in which to say almost everything, and happiness depends upon which way we take. You can upset a person for the whole day by the harsh way in which you may call him in the morning, or you may give him a beautiful start by the cheeriness of your greeting. So not only in words but in all the little, common courtesies and duties of life, think of the beautiful way of doing each.

—Delia L. Porter

JUST to fill the hour—that is happiness. Fill my hour, ye gods, so that I shall not say, whilst I have done this, "Behold, also, an hour of my life is gone"—but rather, "I have lived an hour." —Emerson

JUST BEING HAPPY

THERE is no difference between one person and another more characteristic and noticeable than the facility of being happy. Some seem pierced with half a hundred windows, through which stream warmth, light and sounds of delight. It comes in at the eye and at the ear, at the portals of smell, taste, and touch, in things little and great.

—Henry Ward Beecher

IF all could realize the power of even a small pleasure, how much happier the world would be! And how much longer bodies and souls both would bear up under living! Sensitive people realize that often it happens to them to be revived, kindled, strengthened to a degree which they could not describe, by some little thing—some word of praise, some token of remembrance, some proof of affection or recognition.

—Helen Hunt Jackson

A LITTLE thought will show you how vastly your own happiness depends on the way other people bear themselves toward you. Turn the idea around, and remember that just so much are you adding to the pleasure or the misery of other people's days.

HAPPY WAYS OF DOING THINGS

THERE is always a best way of doing everything, if it be but to boil an egg. Manners are the happy ways of doing things, each one a stroke of genius or of love, now repeated and hardened with usage. . . . You cannot rightly train one to an air and manner, except by making him the kind of man of whom that manner is the natural expression. Nature forever puts a premium on reality. What is done for effect is seen to be done for effect. —Emerson

TO dwell happily together, they should be versed in the niceties of the heart, and born with a faculty for willing compromise. —Robert Louis Stevenson

THERE is nothing like putting the shine on another's face to put the shine on our own. Nine-tenths of all loneliness, sensitiveness, despondency, moroseness, are connected with personal interests. Turn more of these selfish interests into unselfish ones, and by so much we change opportunities for disheartenment into their opposite. —W. C. Gannett

IF thou workest at that which is before thee, following right reason seriously, vigorously, calmly, without allowing anything else to distract thee, but keeping thy divine part pure, if thou shouldst be bound to give it back immediately; if thou holdest to this, expecting nothing, fearing nothing, but satisfied with thy present activity according to nature, and with heroic truth in every word and sound which thou utterest, thou wilt live happy. HAPPINESS is the most accommodating of all things. It will come to a cottage as soon as to a palace. You need never wait for any outward pomp to come.

YOU are very sensible how much you have rambled after happiness and failed. Neither learning, nor wealth, nor fame, nor pleasure could ever help you to it. Which way is it to be had, then? MISERY is the exception, happiness is the rule. No rational man ever heard a bird sing without feeling that the bird was happy, and that if God made that bird He made it to be happy, and He takes pleasure in its happiness, though no human heart should ever share in its joy. —Charles Kingsley

IF you want knowledge, you must toil for it; and if pleasure, you must toil for it. Toil is the law. Pleasure comes through toil, and not by self-indulgence and indolence. When one gets to love work, his life is a happy one.

AND now you are to ask yourself if, when all is done, it would not have been better to sit by the fire at home, and be happy thinking. To sit still and contemplate—to remember the faces of women without desire, to be pleased by the great deeds of men without envy, to be everything and everywhere in sympathy, and yet content to remain where and what you are—is not this to know both wisdom and virtue, and to dwell with happiness? —Walking Tours

HOW it blesses the street, a face laughing all to itself! As soon as one sees it, the corners of his mouth begin to twitch, too, with the God's gift. Eyes light, strangers greet knowingly, hearts soften, spirits rise, lives brighten, and the world grows friendly, within the circle of the merry echo.

Educate your laugh, if you can, to ring often and sweet, that you may be able to radiate widely your pleasure and health. If we may judge by the abundance of the glad sound, and its rapid radiation around every source of it, a good time must be part of the established success of Providence.

IT is only a poor sort of happiness that could ever come by caring very much about our own narrow pleasures. We can only have the highest happiness by having wide thoughts, and much feeling for the rest of the world as well as ourselves; and this sort of happiness often brings so much pain with it that we can only tell it from pain by its being what we would choose before everything else, because our souls see it is good.

JUST BEING HAPPY

IN such a world, so thorny, and where none
Finds happiness unblighted, or, if found,
Without some thistly sorrow at his side,
It seems the law of wisdom, and no sin
Against the law of love, to measure lots
With less distinguish'd than ourselves; that thus
We may with patience bear our moderate ills,
And sympathize with others suffering more.

—W. Cowper

WE cannot have happiness until we forget to seek for it. We cannot find peace until we enter the path of self-sacrificing usefulness.

—Henry van Dyke

ONE of Dr. Johnson's ingredients of happiness was, "A little less time than you want." That means always to have so many things you want to see, to have, and to do, that no day is quite long enough for all you think you would like to get done before you go to bed.

—Helen Hunt Jackson

LILIAN WHITING says that no one can be unhappy who is filled with interest in the happiness of others.

JUST BEING HAPPY

TO be happy and make others happy is the highest duty and privilege in life. Ill temper is the chief of crimes and misdemeanors. Ill temper is contagious, and a person has no more right to go about scattering germs of bad temper than he has to propagate smallpox or the measles. "Sunshine from all and for all" is our home motto, and instant quarantine is the penalty for a failure to live up to it. I believe a happy disposition contributes more to success in a life career than any other single element. —Dorothy Storrs

NO one has any more right to go about unhappy than he has to go about ill-bred. He owes it to himself, to his friends, to society, and to the community in general, to live up to his best spiritual possibilities, not only now and then, once or twice a year, or once in a season, but every day and every hour.

—Lilian Whiting

HAPPINESS, at least, is not solitary; it joys to communicate; it loves others, for it depends on them for its existence; it sanctions and encourages to all delights that are not unkind in themselves. The very name and appearance of a happy man breathe of good-nature, and help the rest of us to live.

—Robert Louis Stevenson

A CERTAIN simplicity of living is usually necessary to happiness. —Henry D. Chapin

HAPPINESS is the natural flower of Duty.

—Phillips Brooks

THE unhappy are always wrong; wrong in being so, wrong in saying so, wrong in needing help of others.

BE pleasant until ten o'clock in the morning, and the rest of the day will take care of itself.

THERE is no happiness, then, but in a virtuous and self-approving conduct. Unless our actions will bear the test of our sober judgments and reflections upon them, they are not the actions, and, consequently, not the happiness of a rational being.

—Franklin

YOU have not fulfilled every duty unless you have fulfilled that of being pleasant. —Charles Buxton

RESOLVE

TO create happiness in myself and others.
I will keep a strong body for the work I have to do; a loving heart for those about me; a clear mind for all truth, whose recognition brings freedom; a poised, unconquerable soul for the ideal whose champion I declare myself,

And I will possess a faith mighty enough to rout anxiety, ride over difficulty, challenge hardship, smile through grief, deny failure, see only victory, looking to the end; by which hopeful assurance now attuned, I am at peace with myself, the world, and the Infinite.

THAT happy state of mind, so rarely possessed, in which we can say, "I have enough," is the highest attainment of philosophy. Happiness consists, not in possessing much, but in being content with what we possess. He who wants little always has enough.

—Zimmerman

DO not forget that even as "to work is to worship," so to be cheery is to worship also; and to be happy is the first step to being pious. —Robert Louis Stevenson

HAPPINESS is a very beautiful thing,—the most beautiful and heavenly thing in the world.

RECIPE FOR A HAPPY LIFE

THREE ounces are necessary, first of patience,
Then of repose and peace; of conscience
A pound entire is needful:
Of pastimes of all sorts, too,
Should be gathered as much as the hand can hold;
Of pleasant memory and of hope three good drachms
There must be at least. But they should moistened be
With a liquor made from true pleasures which rejoice the heart.
Then of love's magic drops a few—
But use them sparingly, for they may bring a flame
Which naught but tears can drown.
Grind the whole and mix therewith of merriment an ounce
To even. Yet all this may not bring happiness
Except in your orisons you lift your voice
To Him who holds the gift of health.

—Margaret of Navarre (1500)

PLEASURE, like all other truly precious things in this world, cannot be bought or sold. If you wish to be amused, you must do your part toward it; that is the essential. —Charles Wagner

JUST BEING HAPPY

TRUE happiness (if understood)
Consists alone in doing good.

—Somerville

SPEAKING of happiness, Joseph Jefferson once said: "My boys sometimes get discouraged and I say to them: 'Go out and do something for somebody. Go out and give something to anybody, if it's only a pair of woolen stockings to a poor old woman; it will take you away from yourself and make you happy!' "

I AM happy in having learned to distinguish between ownership and possession. Books, pictures, and all the beauty of the world belong to those who love and understand them—not usually to those who possess them. All of these things that I am entitled to I have—I own them by divine right. So I care not a bit who possesses them. I used to care very much and consequently was very unhappy. —James Howard Kehler

THERE is an idea abroad among moral people that they should make their neighbors good. One person I have to make good: myself. But my duty to my neighbor is much more nearly expressed by saying that I have to make him happy—if I may.

JUST BEING HAPPY

TAKE Joy home,
And make a place in thy great heart for her:
Then will she come, and oft will sing to thee,
When thou art working in the furrows; aye,
Or weeding in the sacred hour of dawn.
It is a comely fashion to be glad—
Joy is the grace we say to God.

—Jean Ingelow

THE great lesson to be learned is that happiness is within us. No passing amusement, no companionship, no material possession can permanently satisfy. We must hoard up our own strength. We must depend upon our own resources for amusement and pleasure. We must make or mar our own tranquillity. To teach them this is the preparation for life which we can give our children.

THE real test of character is joy. For what you rejoice in, that you love and what you love, that you are like.

THE SECRET OF A HAPPY DAY

I TAKE it that in a happy day—and all life should be of one piece—there must be such a proportion between labor and rest or pleasure as shall leave a balance in favor of labor, so that one may have a permanent sense of achievement, without which there can be no solid sense of happiness, because it justifies human life.

—T. T. Munger

JUST BEING HAPPY

IF I have faltered more or less
In my great task of happiness;
If I have moved among my race
And shown no glorious morning face;
If beams from happy human eyes
Have moved me not; if morning skies,
Books, and my food, and summer rain,
Knocked on my sullen heart in vain:—
Lord, Thy most pointed pleasure take
And stab my spirit broad awake;
Or, Lord, if too obdurate I,
Choose Thou, before that spirit die,
A piercing pain, a killing sin,
And to my dead heart run them in!

—Robert Louis Stevenson

THE best way to secure a happy home is to be happy yourself. One really happy person is enough to create a delightful, pervasive atmosphere of happiness. To have a happy home, set the example of self-sacrifice, love, service, of ministering rather than expecting to be ministered unto—and see what comes of it!

A HOME in which no laughter is heard is only a house, after all; nay, worse, it is a tomb.

I CANNOT think but that the world would be better and brighter if our teachers would dwell on the Duty of Happiness as well as the Happiness of Duty.

—Sir John Lubbock

IN his own life, then, a man is not to expect happiness, only to profit by it gladly when it shall arise; he is on duty here; he knows not how or why, and does not need to know; he knows not for what hire, and must not ask. A HAPPY man or woman is a better thing to find than a five-pound note. He or she is a radiating focus of good-will; and their entrance into a room is as though another candle had been lighted. We need not care whether they could prove the forty-seventh proposition; they do a better thing than that—they practically demonstrate the great Theorem of the Livableness of Life.

—Robert Louis Stevenson

TO be a painter does it suffice to arm one's self with a brush, or does the purchase at great cost of a Stradivarius make one a musician? No more, if you had the whole paraphernalia of amusement in the perfection of its ingenuity, would it advance you upon your road to happiness. But with a bit of crayon a great artist makes an immortal sketch. It needs talent or genius to paint; and to amuse one's self the faculty of being happy, whoever possesses it, is amused at slight cost.

—John Vance Cheney

HAPPINESS and goodness, according to canting moralists, stand in the relation of effect and cause. There was never anything less proved or less probable: our happiness is never in our own hands; we inherit our constitutions; we stand buffet among freinds and enemies; we may be so built as to feel a sneer or an aspersion with unusual keenness, and so circumstanced as to be unusually exposed to them; we may have nerves very sensitive to pain, and be afflicted with a disease more painful. Virtue will not help us, and it is not meant to help us. It is not even its own reward, except for the self-centred and—I had almost said—the unamiable. —Robert Louis Stevenson

JUST BEING HAPPY

IF a person cannot be happy without remaining idle, idle he should remain. It is a revolutionary precept; but, thanks to hunger and the workhouse, one not easily to be abused; and, within practical limits, it is one of the most incontestable truths in the whole Body of Morality. Look at one of your industrious fellows for a moment, I beseech you. He sows hurry and reaps indigestion; he puts a vast deal of activity out to interest, and receives a large measure of nervous derangement in return. Either he absents himself entirely from all fellowship, and lives a recluse in a garret, with carpet slippers and a leaden inkpot; or he comes among people swiftly and bitterly, in a contraction of his whole nervous system, to discharge some temper before he returns to work. I do not care how much or how well he works, this fellow is an evil feature in other people's lives. They would be happier if he were dead. —Robert Louis Stevenson

LET us hope that one day all mankind will be happy and wise; and, though this day never should dawn, to have hoped for it cannot be wrong. And, in any event it is helpful to speak of happiness to those who are sad, that thus at least they may learn what it is that happiness means. —Maurice Maeterlinck

THE happiest women, like the happiest nations, have no history. —George Eliot

JUST BEING HAPPY

MY DEAR ROBERT,—One passage in your Letter a little displeased me * * * You say that "this world to you seems drained of all its sweets!" At first I had hoped you only meant to insinuate the high price of Sugar! but I am afraid you meant more. O Robert, I don't know what you call sweet. Honey and the honeycomb, roses and violets, are yet in the earth. The sun and moon yet reign in Heaven, and the lesser lights keep up their pretty twinklings. Meats and drinks, sweet sights and sweet smells, a country walk, spring and autumn, follies and repentance, quarrels and reconcilements, have all a sweetness by turns. So good humor and good nature, friends at home that love you, and friends abroad that miss you —you possess all these things, and more innumerable; and these are all sweet things. You may extract honey from everything; do not go a-gathering after gall * * * I assure you I find this world a very pretty place.
